

TRUFAST ROOFING ADHESIVE PRESSURE TANKS ARE NOW LOW GWP

TRUFAST is a Trusted Partner for Commercial Roofing Fasteners, Adhesives & Accessories

BRYAN, OH – TRUFAST, a division of Altenloh, Brinck & Co. US, Inc., is announcing a formula change to its roofing adhesive sold in pressurized tanks. This form of roofing adhesive used to contain a blowing agent called hydrofluorocarbons (HFC), which allow the polyurethane to change from a solid into foam, providing the adhesive with both its form and function. Several states adopted restrictive regulations concerning the use of HFC's. Trufast Roofing Adhesive Tanks are now regulation compliant in all 50 states.

Measuring Global Warming Potential (GWP)

Across much of North America, regulators have introduced requirements to gradually eliminate HFCs, and limit their use, thus reducing their impact on the environment. The measurement basis for these regulations is called Global Warming Potential (GWP). With carbon dioxide as the reference gas (assigned the number 1), researchers compare the impact different gasses have on the atmosphere. The higher the GWP number, the greater the possibility of a gas warming the earth in comparison to carbon dioxide.

Low GWP Pressurized Adhesive

Low GWP pressurized spray adhesive provides the same excellent adhesion without harmful HFCs. Not only does this formulation meet changing government requirement, but it also performs exactly as the previous adhesive. Reducing the global warming potential of the substances we use in building projects will help reduce the impact we are having on our atmosphere. Contractors and building owners can now feel confident when using low GWP adhesive for low-slope commercial roofing applications.
